

My choices

Nowadays it is nearly impossible to avoid making choices. Every year it is getting worse and worse, as we have to consider matters of greater importance. For me, it all started with choosing high school. Was my choice best for me? I will never know. I am sure that any of possible choices would make me feel just as I do at the moment, though.

Many teenagers say that they cannot wait to reach the age of eighteen. I have never wanted this. Now that I am considered an adult, I feel lost. There are more choices for me to make. They get more serious and I am afraid I might be unable to get it all right. As far as I am concerned, many high schoolers have problems with stress management. Especially, when it is about their final year. That is when we have to make choices, that may greatly affect our future. Some more experienced people tend to tell us that we should care more. Actually, we do. Some realise that it is just a way to get us down to work and to help us achieve our dreams. Others, however, feel as if they were not good enough to make it. I am both.

I am still not quite sure what path I will choose. As I said - I am lost. What I need to do now is to calm down, think it through all by myself and try to make the right choice about my further studies.
